

HW 6 ANSWERS

1. Interfaces cannot have constructors
2. Variable i is declared in I.java. Error is because i is implicitly a static final variable since it is an interface variable.
3. i is a static variable because it is declared in an interface.
4. "void foo(short)" is inherited by class D from class B so it does not require a second implementation.